

We're fighting for camp outs, campfires and s'mores. We're fighting for soccer games and ballet classes. We're fighting for a world without childhood cancer.

Press On was founded by parents with one mission in mind: To cure childhood cancer within our lifetime. Thanks to our generous donors and with guidance from our Medical Research Board, Press On has facilitated millions of dollars in grants to groundbreaking research for pediatric cancers. Our goal is to achieve a greater cure rate for these cruel diseases while also mitigating the potentially devastating side effects of current therapies, which can include secondary cancers, developmental delays, hearing loss, and many more.

"We're not going to stop funding childhood cancer research until we stop losing kids."

Join the fight today.
